THE METAPHOR - TAKING IT BEYOND GOLF

In an 18-hole round of golf, you experience the full spectrum of emotion. Golf challenges you both physically and mentally; you strive to surpass yourself and overcome your uncertainties - in short, to perform at your maximum capacity. Golf is a window through which you can identify the elements of performance that also determines your success in personal and professional life.

In "Beyond Golf -- The Keynote Presentation," Richard Monette teaches you how to look through this window and apply what you see. He uses his insightful analysis to reveal your strengths and weaknesses, and offers ways to grow beyond these. In a relaxed and entertaining style, Richard adds unique, applicable educational and developmental components to your corporate golf outing.

THE PRESENTER: RICHARD MONETTE BSC.BED.MA

As a man who has been shaped by his own quest, Richard Monette leads a life dedicated to his passion: improving human and organizational performance. He has acquired extensive academic credentials and practical expertise in business, athletics, and education in a career spanning over 20 years.

Richard grew up in a world where sport was life and competition was joy. Then, in a 1993 ski accident, this world vanished and Richard was left barely able to walk. At first, Richard scoffed at a friend's suggestion to take up golf. But rising to the challenge, he changed his mind and quickly learned that while golf lacked in physical intensity, its particular demands could humble even the finest athlete.

Richard has pursued excellence in golf ever since, both as a master and student of the game. He has realized, through this pursuit, that the factors that make us successful on the golf course and those we need to be successful in our personal and professional lives are one and the same. Using this unique metaphor, Richard uses "Beyond Golf" to deliver innovative thinking and customized solutions to organizations and individuals who are committed to transforming their approach and achieving maximum performance.

KEY ELEMENTS OF THE "BEYOND GOLF" PRESENTATION INCLUDE:

1. Playing the Game – Improving your score in golf, business and life. To children, playing comes naturally. Everything is new and exciting, viewed with a sense of wonderment. It isn't until we grow up that negative factors such as fear and insecurity come into play. To perform to our fullest, we need to recapture the focus, drive, creativity and open-mindedness of play. Richard will demonstrate how to apply this play-to-win perspective in all aspects of corporate and personal life.

2. Being a Strategic Thinker – Whether you're judging the wind or the grain of the grass, playing it safe or going for the green, while playing golf you are constantly assessing a range of factors. With so many variables to consider, golf becomes an incredible tool for developing strategic thinking. All the truly great players, including Ben Hogan, Jack Nicklaus, and Tiger Woods, share exceptional abilities in strategic thought.

Using the golf metaphor, Richard will discuss how to implement and develop strategic thinking. Applying this knowledge will translate into better performance all around.

3. Adapting to Changing Conditions – Darwin was right. It is neither strength nor intelligence which ensure survival, but rather adaptability. Adapting to change involves creative thinking, but within the parameters of change. Richard will introduce his principle of Pragmatic Creativity, teaching you how challenging limitations and boundaries can – and do – initiate creativity. Through this unique vehicle, you will learn how to generate out-of-the-box solutions that work within established systems.

4. Avoiding the "Magic Pill" – If you watch the Golf Channel, every day you will hear about a new technique for hitting further or putting better. Every issue of Golf Digest has a new tip on hitting better approaches or playing from bunkers. These are all "Magic Pills": ready-made answers guaranteed to work immediately. Unfortunately, when under pressure, we naturally retreat to our comfort zone and revert to familiar techniques. Rather than succumb to the lure of the Magic Pill, it is far more effective to implement a new technique by thorough testing and extensive practice. Only after we undergo this committed process will the new technique -- or knowledge -- become a natural part of our game. In his presentation, Richard will teach you how to recognize and resist Magic Pill solutions. You will learn how to apply this long-term approach of acquiring knowledge to your personal and business life.

“I realized Richard's presentation had connected with the participants but it was not until days following the staff golf tournament that I realized how much they took away from it. While most golf tournaments are memorable for anecdotal golf tales, our event was much more valuable because days later staff members were still referencing keys learning from the presentation. Richard exceeded the expectations of our management team by introducing an element of professional development that took a standard company golf day to a whole new level.”
